PREPAREDNESS OF NATION IS THEME OF WILSON'S MESSAGE

In President's Third Annual Address He Makes Pan-Americanism the Key Note of the Present Situation

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The president in his annual address to congress laid down the administration's plans for national defense. He told his hearers it was necessary to have a new and broad doctrine for pan-America. With sharp words he arraigned the Americans, who by sympathy for foreign belligerents had endangered the neutrality of the United States. His outline of plans for defense and need for them was received in silence. His declaration of a new pan-American doctrine was received with the deepest interest and applause. The house galleries were packed hours before the president's arrival. Rumor of a woman suffragist demonstration brought out extra guards. Mrs. Galt and party had seats in the executive gallery and watched closely while the president spoke. When he urged merchant marine legislation there was so much applause that he was forced to stop for a moment.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A doctrine of Pan-Americanism—of full partnership between the nations of the Western Hemisphere in world affairs—was proclaimed by President Wilson today in his third annual address to congress, the theme of which was preparedness by the United States to defend not only its own independence but the rights of those with whom it has made common cause. The message was read by the President to the Senate and House assembled in joint session in the chamber of the House.

Every recommendation embodied in the document had to do with comprehensive plans for strengthening the national defenses. The program included the army and navy plans already made public by Secretaries Garrison and Daniels; legislation for government owned merchant ships; a rural credit law; the Philippine and Porto Rico bills which failed of final passage at the last session; conservation legislation; a law giving federal aid to industrial and vocational education; and the creation of a commission to inquire into the transportation problem.

Naturalized and native born Americans who, sympathizing with belligerents abroad, have plotted and conspired to violate their own country's neutrality were scathingly denounced by the president, and congress was urged to provide adequate federal laws to deal with such offenders.

Internal taxation was proposed as the means of providing the money necessary to add to the naval and military establishments. Sources of taxation suggested were incomes, gasoline, naphtha, automobiles and internal explosion engines, fabricated iron and steel, and a stamp tax on bank checks. Extension of the war revenue bill and continuance of the present tariff on sugar were recommended, and the sale of bonds opposed.

This message was the longest Mr. Wilson has ever delivered to congress. He began with a statement that since he last addressed congress: "The European war has extended its threatening and sinister scope until it has swept into its flame some portion of every quarter of the globe, not excepting our own hemisphere, has altered the whole face of international affairs, and now presents a prospect of reorganization and reconstruction such as statesmen and peoples have never been called upon to attempt before."

The United States has remained neutral, he said, because it had no interest in the causes and because it was the duty of the nations of the western hemisphere to prevent collective economic ruin.

The president pointed to the attitude of the United States towards Mexico as proving that this country has no selfish motives in its interest in countries in Central and South America. There was a time, he said, when the United States looked upon itself as a sort of guardian of the republics to the south as against the encroachment or efforts of political control from Europe.

"But," he added, "it was always difficult to maintain such a role without offense to the pride of the peoples whose freedom of action we sought to protect, and every thoughtful man of affairs must welcome the altered circumstances of the new day

DISCOVERY OF GOLD AROUSING INTEREST

MINING MEN FROM NORTHERN TOWN VISIT NEW STRIKE NEAR MINA

J. H. Walsh and A. N. Bradshaw, mining men from Mineral county, arrived in Reno from Mina last night. They had several specimens of ore from the new gold strike, 12 miles west of Mina, and are enthusiastic about the mining outlook in the county, says the Reno Gazette.

In speaking of the new find Mr. Walsh said, "the property on which the find was located about two weeks ago by prospectors from Mina has not been developed to any extent. Surface showings indicate that the ore is permanent and of the highest grade. The locators have been offered $5000 for a 60-day option on the ground but want $30,000. They are pushing development work and I expect to see a large rush into the district when the extent of the orebody is uncovered."

"The tungsten properties at Soda-ville are attracting a great deal of attention and about 60 men are now employed in the mine and hauling the ore to the railroad. C. E. Nobel, discoverer of the mine, sold his interests to the Atkins-Kroll company of San Francisco. They are employing two 10-horse teams transporting the ore to Soda-ville and are preparing to remodel a mill at Luning to handle the output of the mine."

"The copper properties near Luning are assuming large proportions. Over 3000 tons of copper ore has been shipped from New York canyon in the past eight months, and with the expected advance to 20 cents the product will be greatly increased. This ore will run about 7 per cent copper and about half the output of the district has been taken from the Mayflower mine. Fifty horses are employed in hauling the ore from the mines to the railroad at Luning."
